

POSITION PAPER

PARENTAL RIGHTS AND PRIMACY

By: John W. Wallace

I unequivocally support the return of all God-given, unalienable rights of every family to decide how to raise their children, what their children are allowed to do, and with whom their children are allowed to associate. Parents should decide where and how their child will be educated, whether in public, private or religious education. Parents have the right to withdraw their child from sexual education classes or any other classes if they believe the program is not in the best interest of their child or against their own moral or religious beliefs.

Parents must be notified if their minor child asks for an abortion, or the taking of birth control pills. There should never be any type of sexual examination at school or on school time. An examination must be done with the parent's consent, and at their physician's office, or in extreme cases where abuse can and might be proved, by court order. No family should ever be threatened with the taking of their child if they do not conform to government rules and regulations. The government of the United States of America should never interfere with how a family decides to rear one's child. If it comes down to real or suspected child abuse, government involvement should revert to law enforcement agencies where the child lives, and then only with proof beyond a reasonable doubt. Every child should also be allowed to pray at school, during recess, lunch, or after school on school property.
